

Since this program started, the approval documents have been arriving during the summer months when just about every school in the country is on break and most of the people responsible for the paper work aren't at work.

Schools and Libraries recognized this, but their answer was to add an additional contact on the application. Wouldn't a better approach be to deadline themselves to complete the process before May 1 each year?